BEST BET: Race 8 - #7 Green Mansions

While this colt by Kantharos does have a good deal of natural speed, he game from off the pace last time out in a huge effort, finishing second behind his stablemate, Sweat. Sweat would go on to run a good third in allowance optional claiming company, and the race also produced two next out winners. Additionally, the Stanley Gold barn has been winning at a roughly 36% clip over the last 30 days.

LONGSHOT: Race 3 - #5 Diamond Mint

The two outside runners, Golden Kantharos and Sobrino, promise to take the majority of the money in this race, leading me to think the class dropper Diamond Mint will be a nice price. He ran very well at this level a few starts back in his first start against winners, and after never lifting his feet last time out in tougher competition drops back down to a spot where he looks very well meant.
