BEST BET: Race7: #3 Aquemini

It took her a while to get going at the start of her career, but after breaking her maiden, Aquemini came right back with an impressive victory in her first start against winners. She'll now take a bit of a drop in class and face state bred company. Tyler Gaffalione stays here as opposed to the other Ralph Nicks runner in this field, Hotty Toddy, though he has ridden both.

LONGSHOT: Race 6: #4 Florida Cotton

Coming off of a roughly nine month layoff, Florida Cotton ran a big race to be third, beaten by just half a length, in his most recent race, which was at this level and distance. By the versatile sire High Cotton and out of a multiple stakes winning dam, this gelding should be able to take a step forward at a good price with Luca Panici in the irons once again.
