BEST BET: Race 9 – Jai Blue

After an explosive victory by open lengths two starts back, this gelding backed that performance up last time out when stepping up into tougher company and finishing a good third. That was also first off the claim for Saffie Joseph Jr., so now, making his second start off the claim, I expect an even better effort. Additionally, Jai Blue looks to be the controlling speed here.

LONGSHOT: Race 10 - #7 Fergielicious

For her very first start on the turf, this filly ran against the likes of the razor-sharp Uncle B in significantly tougher competition, not to mention she was facing males. Turning back to a sprint distance, I think she meets a much more manageable field and will run with her own gender this time. She'll be a nice price for a good barn.
