BEST BET: Race 7 - #1 I'm Cardinal

There seems to be some other speed singed on in this race, and I like that this gelding can duel or, if need be, sit just off the pace. Given the inside post draw, I think it's possible that he could sit a nice stalk trip along the rail, although he has shown in the past that he can be tenacious and keep up with his competition. In addition, the recent Beyer Speed Figures for I'm Cardinal, especially his most recent win right at this track, make him a standout in here.

LONGSHOT: Race 5 - #6 Minute Madness

Any horse first off the claim for Peter Walder is worth a second look, and you'll get a very nice price on this one. This overachieving son of Gone Astray has been freshened since the end of September, and will now make his first start for a barn that is 21% first off the claim. In addition, he will pick up Paco Lopez as the pilot. I also think the stretch out in distance to the mile should have him be more forwardly placed and in a good position.
