BEST BET: Race 3 - #7 Nothins Free

Getting a slight drop in class today, that could be the difference after three consecutive in the money finishes. She ran at this level two starts back, but it was on a wet track. She has natural early speed and I think is most potent when she can use that to her advantage. She has a good outside post and faces the right kind of field today.

LONGSHOT: Race 6 - #5 Take Notice

This gelded son of Speightstown has only ever run once on the grass, and it was with different connections and at the start of his career in maiden special weight company. He ran a solid fourth in that start at Churchill Downs back in May. Since being claimed by Marcus Vitali, he has run his last two starts on dirt, and with some natural speed, has been training very sharply leading up to today. He should be a nice price too, given the slight class jump, but I think has a shot.
