BEST BET: Race 9 - #1 So Sublime

A re-claim for trainer Saffie Joseph Jr., this gelding has been ultra consistent. Although he is taking a slight step up in class, he does have some back class to go off of, and he's strong recent form makes him a top contender. He gets jockey Tyler Gaffalione in the saddle, and could potentially be the controlling speed in a seemingly pace-less race.

LONGSHOT: Race 6 - #1 Little Bridge

This horse does not look pretty on paper, but she is getting her claiming tag sliced in half today and should really benefit from that. Two starts back she was pinched at the start and had a very troubled trip, while last time out was in over her head. I think that she fits in here, and could be the sneaky at a very nice price.
