BEST BET: Race 7 – Adios Nardo

There seems to be an abundance of speed in this race, and I wanted someone who would come from off the pace. Adios Nardo fits the bill and, with the exception of his last, where he was compromised by an outside post, has been very good lately for trainer Leo Gabriel Jr.

LONGSHOT: Race 6 – #5 Switched

While the speedy Players Luck will certainly be a short price, if the big drop is in fact for a negative reason or if he is pressured early by the inside two runners, it looks like Switched could pick up the pieces. Though stepping up in class, he won very impressively last time out and has some dirtied up form, which should make him a price.
