GPW, Day 26 of 40: I am well rested and ready to take on Sunday's 10-race Gulfstream West program, especially after that extra one hour of sleep; hope you remembered to turn your clocks back! Anyway, first post on this November 4th Sunday, as post-Breeders' Cup-life begins, is about 12:30 p.m. ET. It's never too early to talk Gulfstream Park 'championship meet' and believe it or not, GP's primetime season begins 27 days from now on Saturday, December 1st. In fact, that 12-1-18 program doesn't just open the top-class racing action at GP – it's also the date of the annual Claiming Crown Championship. Yes, that is four weeks down the line, but there will certainly be a Claiming Crown-type flare at GPW Sunday because of the six individual starter allowance races carded; these races serve as key dress rehearsals for some of the local Claiming Crown-bound runners. In fact, the opening starter allowance in race 3 – for horses that have started for 8k claiming or less – houses the Blewitt Best Bet (or BBB for short) in Chiseled. Good ol' Chiseled is about as tough as they make them: this Peter Walder-trained son of Malibu Moon has walked the walk and danced the dances throughout his lengthy 65-race career. He sports a gaudy and impressive 16 victories and has run really well in two recent races off the claim for Walder. Walder, in fact, also runs Cheech Thunder off a claim for Loooch Racing. Cheech Thunder is 11-2-7 from 42 career starts and is fresh off a current 56-day layoff.

Late P5 for Sunday: Here's to a great end to Breeders' Cup weekend in glorious Miami Gardens. The second half of the program is where it's at in my humble estimation and I'm going to try and score with an $18 late Pick 5 play for 50 cents. I have constructed this play around Mi Cuaima in race 8. I really believe Mi Cuaima needs an uncontested lead to be successful (translates to winning) and she should be as loose as she wants to in race 8. Best of luck!

R6: 2,8,9 -Important turf rematch from 10/12; dangerous Maker ship-in outside

R7: 3,7 -Unless one of the bigger prices steps up, this will be a 2-horse chalk affair

R8: 3 -I've always liked this filly and she can finally get the lead that she needs!

R9: 4,5 -Race centers on Race Me Home – if he handles GPW's main he probably wins

R10: 2,5,12 -Three logical players for the dough; coverage is needed in the turf finale
