CONVERSIONS

When announcers, turf writers and chartcallers refer to losing and winning margins in "lengths," they are talking about margins of approximately 10 feet. As a reference point, that's approximately the same distance between the stanchions that support the inner rail. Perhaps you may overhear a Brit say "Eight stone 10," the translation of which is 122 pounds because a "stone" is 14 pounds. Add 10 and it equals 122. Horse racing is a game of inches, as well as pounds and furlongs.

HERE ARE SOME CONVERSIONS YOU MAY FIND USEFUL:
