BEST BET: Race 3 - #7 Third Time Around

After breaking her maiden two back when dropping in for a maiden claiming tag for the first time, this filly stepped up to face significantly tougher last time out. She's taking a drop in class today, and it makes sense. She will also get the addition of Lasix, and blinkers added on. I don't think she needs the lead, but she does have natural speed and a good outside post where rider Paco Lopez will have the opportunity to let the race play out inside of him.

LONGSHOT: RACE 10 - #6 Pearlescent

This filly will be a nice price in the nightcap, as a horse that beat her last time out is also in the race. Trish the Dish, who finished second in that February 19, will rematch with Pearlescent today, and I think the latter has the chance to turn the tables. After breaking her maiden two back for trainer Ruben Gracida, this filly broke slowly last time out and then rushed up. She still finished a respectable third and double digit odds, and I'm hoping that she'll break sharper today.
