BEST BET: Race 8 - #3 Yodel E. A. Who

Getting a slight stretch out today to the 7 furlongs and taking a drop in class, this horse looks to be in the right spot. He stumbled at the start last time out, and was way behind the rest of the field from early on, not to mention was running at a distance that is probably a bit shorter than his best. Two back he ran a tremendous second behind Quenane in the Rough and Ready, and I'm just going to put a line through his most recent start. He has tactical speed, and I think should get a good trip in here.

LONGSHOT: Race 10 - #3 All Around

This gelding has been really popular at the claim box in his recent starts, and this time will head out for new trainer Luis Ramirez. He's been given a time since his last race in mid-January, and is coming off a solid third place finish on turf. While that was a good race, I do feel his best surface is the main track, and he's switching back today. His races two and three back on dirt, against a comparable level of competition, will put him right in contention here.
